

Sowing the Seeds for Success

Dear Parents,

I recently mailed a letter to all of you regarding re-enrollment for the 2016-2017 year. I am sure you were pleased with the decision of our Board of Trustees and Administration to offer a generous incentive to you during our six-week re-enrollment period. Our Board of Trustees are all Montessori parents, current and past, who understand the value of a Westmont education and because of it, give their time and resources to support its growth and success.

Our continued partnership is very important to us and more importantly we believe is the continuation of your children's educational journey at Westmont. As stated, we realize the investment in early education is a serious commitment. We also know that this investment will reap its own rewards for your children's future success in school and in life.

We all agree that Westmont is a special place. Alumni parents continue to remind us of the importance of their Westmont beginnings and how it supports their children socially, emotionally, and academically. We continue to observe competent, confident, creative thinkers, problem solvers, and collaborators in our student body. This year, at our workshop offerings and our parent coffees and interactions, I am pleased and proud to hear you discuss the benefits you already see in, and for, your children. The growing interest of our parents in learning more about our materials, curriculum, and added benefits of an individualized approach to learning is rewarding.

What an amazing history our school holds. We are entering our 52nd year with our accreditation recommendation in hand and a strategic planning process in the making. Our administration, faculty, staff, and board of trustees are committed to maintaining Westmont's status and reputation in the community as a leader among Montessori schools.

I hope you continue to partner with us as we impart knowledge, teach life skills, develop character, and build self-esteem and resilience in our students. Take advantage of our gift to you and your children and together let us continue to nurture the seeds of success.

Colette
